

Booking & Follow-Up Checklist

Cheat Sheet - Skill: booking - Difficulty: beginner - Est. 5 min

Draft resource pending human editorial review - not yet professionally verified.

A tick-through checklist for the moments around booking a meeting and following up, so nothing basic slips - confirming interest, sending details, and closing the loop.

Learning objectives

- Confirm interest before booking
- Capture the essentials of the meeting
- Send a clear confirmation
- Follow up in a way that adds value

Before you hang up

- Confirmed genuine interest, not just politeness.
- Agreed a specific day and time.
- Said what the meeting will cover and how long it will take.
- Repeated the details back to check them.

After the call

- Sent a short confirmation with day, time, and topic.
- Included one line of relevant context, not a sales pitch.
- Set your own reminder to prepare.
- Planned a single, useful follow-up if they go quiet.

Worked example (confirmation)

"Thanks Jordan - confirming Wednesday 10:00 for 20 minutes on driver scheduling. I will show you how two similar teams handle last-minute changes, and you can decide if it is worth going further. Talk then."

Safe-practice note

Confirm meetings you actually agreed to; do not "book" someone who was only being polite. Keep confirmations honest and brief. One well-timed follow-up beats repeated chasing.
